County Wins Court Test Over Pollution Control

By KENNETH HAIN
County Supervisor

Los Angeles County's authority to control industries polluting the air was seriously challenged — and upheld — in the courts recently.

The suit was filed by the Western Oil and Gas Association, which represents the major oil companies operating in California.

The case was in court for more than four years. The trial record included over 3,000 pages of scientific evidence and 200 exhibits.

AT THE conclusion of the trial, Judge Leonar A. Diether of the Superior Court held that the Air Pollution Control Act is constitutional and upheld the validity of Rule 62 and Rule 62.1 in every respect.

On Jan. 17, 1968, the Court of Appeals dismissed an appeal of the oil companies.

The decision is vitally important because if the plaintiffs had prevailed it is possible that all of the rules of the APCD would have been declared invalid.

SINCE 1947 the Board of Supervisors has adopted and the APCD has enforced more than 100 rules and regulations which govern the emissions of pollution from stationary industrial and commercial sources.

Los Angeles County has been in the smog-fighting business for more than 20 years and has the strongest rules and regulations in the nation for controlling stationary sources.

Pollution from motor vehicles is the responsibility of the state and federal governments. About 90 per cent of the contaminants in the Los Angeles basin atmosphere are due to vehicle emissions.

THE AUTOMOBILE industry has failed to meet its obligation to the public health.

APCD inspectors issued 180 notices of violation — citing 167 motor vehicles — during February, 1968, alone.

Assigned inspections of more than 400 locations and processing some 112 citizens' complaints resulted in issuance of 13 notices of violations to stationary sources in the Los Angeles basin.

PROSECUTION of 359 violators by the APCD during February ended in conviction of 338 cases. There were 19 cases involving excessive smoke from vehicles that were dismissed by the courts upon presentation of proof of correction of the condition, according to the APCD statistics.

Dog Dies, Boy Hurt In Crash

Two teenage boys on motorcycles were injured in separate accidents Sunday.

Sixteen-year-old Gerald A. Coffin, 5320 Clearsite Ave., accidentally killed a black Australian shepherd dog on Paseo de las Tortugas when the dog darted in front of his motorcycle. Coffin injured his right knee when his motorcycle flipped over.

The shepherd dog belonged to Benjamin H. Knapp, 4904 Paseo de las Tortugas.

IN A SECOND motorcycle mishap, 17-year-old Ronald A. Koebel, 5519 Rockview Ave., suffered a broken nose, damaged teeth, and multiple abrasions when his vehicle collided with a station wagon on Sepulveda Boulevard near Kent Avenue.

At the wheel of the station wagon was Arthur Lee Ekrem, 37, of 22005 Ocean Ave.

POLICE SAID the motorcycle rammed into the left rear door of the station wagon as the larger vehicle pulled out into traffic from the curb.

Both motorcyclists were taken by ambulance to Little Company of Mary Hospital.
